Everglades Service Station

To Francis Harris

A business deal of some importance was concluded over the past week end, wherein Al Kirchner sold his Everglades (Sinclear) Service station to Francis Harris, the latter assuming management on August 1st. Mr. Kirchner has owned and managed the station for the past 15 years, making it one of the oldest stations in the city. Mr. Kirchner sold his station in order that he might devote his time to cattle ranch business in which he will engage.

Former patrons will surely miss his smiling face about the place. Francis Harris, the new owner, has been connected with "Slick" Kirchner, at the Sinclear bulk station, prior and after the late war, and was a wide acquaintance throughout the Glades. Mr. Harris was in the late war as an aviator. He will change the name of the station from that of the Everglades to Harris's Station.

This health protection measure has not been enforced in years because of the prevalence of polio in some of the nearby counties, especially North Carolina.

The company's entire system, exceeding the capacity of its 90,000-kilowatt station near Fort Lauderdale.

Decision to locate the new generator at Riviera Beach, deMaya stated, was reached after analyses by company engineers and economic researchers indicated that population growth during the immediate future will cause increased electric demands in this area.

In preparation for such a step deMaya said Florida Power & Light Company ordered both the generator and boiler in April, 1947—"more than a year ago", he emphasized, leaving the site of the plant to be determined by population growth.

The huge turbo-generator, the most modern of its kind, cooled by hydrogen gas, is being built by General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The boiler, capable of converting 250 tons of water to steam every hour, is being built by Combustion Engineering Company, New York City.

Expansion of the Riviera Beach plant follows closely upon the plant's erection as a new and modern addition to the company's system in the latter part of 1946.

Describing enlargement of the Riviera Beach plant, deMaya declared that it will consist of a "new degree in plant construction". Unlike the present Riviera Machinery, much of which is housed, he said, "if any, of the new unit will be covered by shelter. Construction costs, accordingly, will be reduced, building maintenance expense in the future will be practically eliminated—typical of modern degree in plant construction".

deMaya pointed out that existing plant at Riviera is "another step in Florida Power & Light Company's present $85,000,000 construction and expansion program."

"As a result of this program, the public has already seen our new plants go up at Sarasota and Riviera. New additional generators have been recently placed in operation at Sanford and Miami. A huge new 72,000-kilowatt station is under construction at Cutler, south of Miami."

"When we complete the Riviera addition... we will have tripled our generating capacity since pre-war 1940," deMaya said. "That's proof that we are growing with Florida and helping Florida grow."

The company also announced last week that it was ordering a $4,000,000 station generator for delivery in 1951, to be located at a site as yet undetermined but wherever Florida's growth requires.

Tropical Lodge, F and A. M. of Ft. Myers, on last Friday night, sponsored by its Scottish Rite Consistory members, held open house at a "consistory" gathering, which was attended by around 150 companions from the Miami, Lake Worth and Miami consistories.

The purpose of the meeting was to organize a Scottish Rite Study Club, some 30 men signing up memberships cards.

Prior to the evening meeting the "Eastern Star" chapter served a chicken and rice supper at the lodge banquet hall. Entertainment was provided by John McKissick, of Lake Worth, with magical tricks. Short talks were made by Irving Hegland, Chester Wright and J. R. Cherry.

The address of the evening was given by Dr. Russell Williams, of Miami, purely a Masonic educational one.

Messrs. Al Kirchman, J. R. Cherry, John M. Glodhill, Jack O. Johnson and Hans Stein of Belle Glade were in attendance. Lee and Collier counties are now within the Lake Worth Consistory jurisdiction.

Marine Recruits To Be Here August 11th

Continuing the regular monthly trips to Belle Glade, Master Sgt. James S. Alfieri, in charge of Marine recruiting in this area, will open a temporary office in the Belle Glade post office on Wednesday, Aug. 11. The office, open for one day only, will be maintained from noon until 8 p. m.

"The Marine Corps," said Alfieri, "is an organization to which any American can be proud to belong. The caliber of the men in its ranks is well illustrated by the fact that such prominent men as Paul H. Douglas, of the University of Chicago, Paul C. Smith of the San Francisco Chronicle, and Eric Johnston, movie czar, have all served as Leathernecks."

Sergeant Alfieri said that there has been no change in the requirements for those entering the Corps for the first time. Re-enlistment regulations, however, have been altered and the sergeant urged former Marines to contact him for the latest information.
